

The Daily Gazetteer.

SATURDAY, MAY 14. 1743.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland.

Petersbourg, April 27.

HE Court seems to be of Opinion, that the Swedes want another Blow or two; in order to bring them to Reason, and therefore we are redoubling our Vigilance in arming both by Land and Sea. With this View, all the Townsmen here have been directed to make Bread for the Troops that are to embark, and the Gallies at Cronslot are to be got ready with all imaginable Dispatch, that the intended descent may be no longer retarded. On the 2d a grand Council of War was held to decide on the Operations of the Campaign, and, as soon as it rose, an Express was dispatch'd to General Keith with fresh Orders. The Value of about 70,000 Rubles, in Bullion, arrived a few Days ago from Courland, and were instantly carried to the Mint to be coined. To-morrow the Polish Minister, Count Oginski, will have his first Audience of her Majesty, and it is generally conjectured, that we shall soon have some Eclaircissements as to the Military Preparations that are still making in Poland.

Stockholm, May 16. Count Tessio still remains firm in his Resolution of laying down his Employments at all Events. It is said to be owing to some outrageous Pamphlets lately published, in which He, in Conjunction with the rest of the Ministry, has been desperately treated. His Majesty had the Goodness to entreat Him to continue in his Posts; but he answered without Hesitation, 'In all other Things I am at your Majesty's Service, but here my Honour is too deeply concerned for me to change my Resolution.' Baron Rose was chosen by the Dyst, to command in Chief under the King, by a Majority of 60 Voices. Baron Nolken's Departure for Abo is put off. It depends now upon the Arrival of an Express from the Plenipo's left behind. In the mean Time, new Instructions, in the Nature of an Ultimatum, are preparing for that Minister, in order to bring the Matter to a short Issue. The Peasants have again and again declar'd, that they adhere to their first Proposition, that they will never consent to any other Successor than the Prince Royal of Denmark; so that Things seem to move here more heavily than ever.

Naples, May 1. We are now in hopes of having no further Disputes with the English Court, since the strong-oh Assurances have been given, that we shall not do any Thing contrary to our Neutrality. Yesterday about Half an Hour after One in the Morning, the Queen was happily brought to Bed of a Princess, and both her Majesty and the Child are as well as can be expected.

Lehorn, May 1. Baron Neuhoff arrived here on the 18th, and went immediately on board an English Man of War called the Folkstone, commanded by Capt. Ballan, with the Consent of Admiral Matthews, who said, That as he came in an English Man of War, he should be welcome on board an English Man of War, till he had positive Orders to the contrary from his Court. This occasions a great deal of Astonishment here; for tho' it is true, that neither the Courts of London or Vienna have publickly espoused the Cause of the Baron, yet it is as true, that they have never declared against him in such a Manner, as to give their Subjects to apprehend, that they would in reality be offended at their giving the Baron any Countenance. It is also consider'd as a Thing still more extraordinary, that even since the Baron's last Arrival here, abundance of Officers, and other Natives of Corsica, have resorted on board the Ship where he is, have been very well received, and, it is thought, will still be with him; but whither, Time must discover.

Turin, May 9. According to the Dispositions made by the Marquis de las Minas, it appears plainly, that his Intention is to form two Camps; one at Montmelian, and the other in the Neighbourhood of Conflans. It seems, that General thinks no more of penetrating into Piedmont, but is desirous, if it be possible, to fix himself in Savoy; at least he takes all possible Precautions to hinder us from penetrating into that Country. The King remains, however, determin'd to attempt dislodging the Spaniards as soon as the Snows are melted. With this View, 25,000 Men are encamped in the Valley of Aost, and another Body of 10,000 Men are advancing towards the Tarantese. The King's Troops are superior to the Enemy by about 7000 Men. In the midst of all these Motions, there is still great Talk of an Accommodation between our Court and that of Madrid. However that be, it is reported that a Train of heavy Artillery has been lately sent from Barcelona to Toulon, which escaped, with much ado, four English Men of War that were cruising on purpose for them.

Frankfort, May 15. The French continue still to buy up all the Provisions they can meet with, either in the Palatinate, or in the Country of D'Armstadt. We shall very soon see what their true Design is, for the English Troops in our Neighbourhood augment daily, and will certainly pass the Main. They have already begun to encamp in the County of Hainault, and will next Week occupy the Camp traced out for them between this City and Hochst. The News of the Imperialists having received a Defeat in Bavaria, is true; the Foreign Ministers were packing up their Effect at Munich when the Post came away. Private Letters from thence say, that all Things are in the utmost Confusion, and that, in all probability, the Loss of this Battle will quite change the Face of Affairs.

From the Head Quarters of the Austrian Army at Scar-dingen, May 11.

On the 27th of this Month a grand Council of War was held at Passau, and in the Evening General Browne set out for Prague, to carry her Majesty an exact Account of the Resolutions take therein. On the 30th, being the Day appointed for her Majesty's solemn Entry into the City last mentioned, Prince Charles of Lorraine order'd 6 Battalions, and 22 Squadrons, to pass the River, over our Bridge; while, at the same time, 6 Battalions, and 20 Squadrons, passed the same River at Gheim. On the 4th we had Advice, that the Troops we had detach'd into the Archibishoprick of Salzburg, had carried their Point, and forc'd the Hessians and Palatines to retire. On the 6th a Courier from Franconia brought Advice, that the English were in full March for the Main, and that the King of Great Britain was soon expected, to take upon himself the Command of the Army. This News was immediately made publick, and a good Quantity of Liquor given to the Soldiers, who drank to the King of Great Britain's Health with great Alacrity.

On the 8th his Royal Highness detach'd Baron Berencz at the Head of a considerable Body of Horse and Dragoons, to drive the French from Truffleren, a Post on this Side the Rott, which had been occupied by the famous Partizan Col. La Croix. He had with him 6 or 700 Men, and made at first some Show of Fighting, but he was quickly convinced that this was to little Purpose; whereupon he and his Troops surrender'd Prisoners of War. The same Fate betel the Chevalier de Kermelec, whom the King of France, for his good Services, had lately made a Lieutenant-Colonel. Baron Berencz having left a small Detachment in Truffleren, pass'd the Rott, and attack'd Pfarkirchen, where he made the rest of La Croix's Troops Prisoners, under the Command of the Captains Demoulin and Dulemont. This was chiefly occasion'd by the Prince of Conti's having withdrawn all his Troops from the Post they occupied between the Isar and the Inn; which left La Croix entirely without Support, and open'd the Way to the glorious Action of the next Morning.

On the 9th, at Break of Day, Prince Charles of Lorraine march'd with that Body of Horse and Foot which had pass'd the Inn at Oberberg, towards Erbach and Dobell, which lie above Braunau, between the Rott and the Inn; there General Menucci had a Body of ten Battalions and 18 Squadrons of Bavarian Troops, making in all about 7000 Men. General Baroni had Orders to attack him with his Husars in the Flank, while Prince Charles, with the rest of his Troops, attack'd in Front. The Engagement continued very warm for some Hours, which was chiefly owing to five Pieces of Cannon post'd on an Eminence at Dobell, which gaul'd the Austrians very much, till a Body of Husars dismounted, and made themselves Masters of them; which was a Thing never known before. This threw the Enemy into great Confusion, and after a Dispute of five Hours, they were entirely broken and dispersed, insomuch that not 500 march'd off the Field of Batt.e. General Minucci is dangerously wounded, and taken Prisoner; so are the Major-Generals Prying and Gabrieli, and Baron de Meesbach, Colonel of Horse; the young Count Hollenstein was shot, in the beginning of the Engagement, in the Rim of his Belly, and died before Night. He is heartily regretted by all the World, and, it is thought, his Loss will greatly affect his unfortunate Father, who loved him tenderly. (He was Natural Son to the Emperor.) The fine Regiment of Hessian Dragoons in the Emperor's Service are two-thirds of them cut to Pieces. We reckon that about 2000 were killed upon the Spot, and that near as many are made Prisoners. Veldt Marshal Seckendorff was advancing to their Assistance, when he received the News of their Defeat; upon which he dispatch'd a Courier to M. Broglie, to advise him, that if he did not immediately oblige the Enemy to repel the Inn, his Imperial Majesty's Affairs would be utterly ruined. The Colonel of the Hessian Dragoons, and 14 of his Officers, have been just conduct'd to Prince Charles of Lorraine, who received them very civilly.

Hague, May 22. The Baron de Reischach has just received a Confirmation of the Victory gained by Prince Charles of Lorraine over the Imperialists. The Duke of Cumberland staid but one Day at Amsterdam, and then continued his Journey to Hanover, by the Way of Utrecht. It is said, that his Britannick Majesty has actually concluded a Marriage between his Daughter, the Princess Amelia, and the Duke of Holstein-Uten; and another between the Princess Louis, and the Prince Royal of Denmark. The 20,000 Men granted for the Service of the Queen of Hungary are to march, according to the last Resolution of the States General, where they may be most useful to her; and this Day the British Ministers have been invited to a Conference, in order to settle that Point.

THE Elements of ALGEBRA, in New and Easy Methods, with their Use and Application, in the Solution of a great Variety of Arithmetical and Geometrical Questions, by General and Universal Rules. To which is prefix'd, An Introduction containing a cinct History of this Science.

By MR. NATHANIEL HAMMOND, of the Bank.

Extract from the Account of this Book in the Works of the Learned.

The World has long complained of the Want of a proper Introduction to Algebra. Some are so very concise, as they were contriv'd not to teach but introduce a Trade others again are larger, but wrote with so little Consideration to the Understandings of such as are altogether unacquainted with the Science, that they are of very little Use to those who are most inclined to make use of them. When it comes to pass, that few find it practicable to make Progress in Algebra without a Master, tho' t'is tainly the Science in itself is far from surpassing a clear Head, and a tolerable Understanding.

The Design of this Treatise, which is of a reasonable Length, and which contains nothing which is not solid, and to the Purpose, is to assist such as are engaged in teaching Algebra with a regular Method, and a large Stock of Examples, that their Scholars may find Employment in their Absence, and to enable such as live in Country-Places, and are frequently want all other Tutors, except Books, to acquire such a Skill in this Science, as may enable them to spend a Portion of their Time agreeably in the Cultivation of the better Parts, and in rendering a natural Method of employing after Truth habitual.

The Treatise begins with a copious Explication of the Fundamental Principles of the Art, and of the Signs and Method of Notation used therein. The Author then proceeds to the several Rules, explaining them carefully and copiously in all their various Cases; so that with a moderate Attention it is simply impossible for a Person, who designs to be Master of Algebra, to miss of his End.

We never find this Writer advancing any thing out of proper Place, or burthening the Mind of his Scholar with Rules, before they become necessary: He professes to have imitated the judicious Euclid in this Respect; and he has done it with equal Art and Felicity. By this means he has delivered the young Student in Algebra from that which is usually the most fatiguing Part of the Science, viz. The Doctrine of Surds, in the Manner in which it is usually taught. By the same Means he leads his Reader directly to Equations; and, by shewing him the Profit he will gain from this Science, encourages him to overcome all its Difficulties. But having thus laid a strong and rational Foundation, he moves more slowly through the rest of his Work, that whoever follows him, may be obliged to become Master of ever Branch of the Art, so as to be a compleat Algebraist before he quits his Book, and not a Smatterer.

Quadratic Equations, and the Art of managing Complicating Series, the admirable Invention of the incomparable Newton, are here so clearly explained, and their several Cases so plainly set down, and so thoroughly explicated, that it may be truly said, there are no where else such Instructions to be met with. At the Close of the Book, we find abundance of Observations, necessary for enlightening such Minds as are willing to proceed still farther in analytic Discoveries; so that considering the Compass of this Work, and that it is very moderate, it is as complete as possibly can be expected: And he who is thoroughly versed in it, will find no difficulties, when he proceeds to sublimer Studies. Its Language is plain and natural, the Book is more compact than any other in Examples, and the Illustrations of the are so full and clear, that it is impossible to mistake its Meaning.
